SOCIAL EXCLUSION AND POVERTY REDUCTION IN LATIN AMERICAN AND THE CARIBBEAN
ESTANISLAO GACITÚA
CARLOS SOJO
With SHELTON H. DAVIS
Editors

SOCIAL EXCLUSION AND POVERTY REDUCTION IN LATIN AMERICAN AND
THE CARIBBEAN

THE WORLD BANK
INDEX

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS ................. 7

PROLOGUE TO WORKSHOP PROCEEDINGS ON POVERTY AND SOCIAL EXCLUSION IN THE LATIN AMERICA ..... 9
  Guillermo Perry

INTRODUCTION: POVERTY AND SOCIAL EXCLUSION IN LATIN AMERICA AND THE CARIBBEAN .......... 13
  Estanislao Gacitúa
  with Shelton H. Davis

SOCIAL EXCLUSION AS A DISTRIBUTION THEORY ...... 23
  Adolfo Figueroa

THE SOCIO-POLITICAL AND CULTURAL DYNAMICS OF SOCIAL EXCLUSION ............. 49
  Carlos Sojo

BASIC RIGHTS AS A REFERENCE FOR EXPLAINING THE PARADIGM OF CITIZENSHIP AND DEFINING THE BOUNDARIES OF SOCIAL EXCLUSION .......... 79
  Jaime Ordóñez

SOCIAL EXCLUSION IN THE CARIBBEAN .......... 103
  Michel-Rolph Trouillot

RACE, POVERTY, AND SOCIAL EXCLUSION IN BRAZIL ............ 143
  Nelson Do Valle Silva

YOUTH AND SOCIAL EXCLUSION IN CHILE .......... 181
  Carolina Tohá Morales
ABOUT THE AUTHORS

CARINE CLERT has experience in the areas of social policy and poverty alleviation strategies, gender analysis and labor market access. She has worked as a Consultant with the International Trade Organization in Geneva and Chile and has worked as a researcher for the Centro de Análisis de Políticas Públicas en la Universidad de Chile. Ms. Clert has also worked as an Advisor on economic and financial issues for the French Ministry of Cooperation and Development in Mauritania. Her publications include themes of poverty, social exclusion and gender in Chile. Ms. Clert received her PhD. in Social Policy and Administration from the London School of Economics and Political Sciences.

SHELTON H. DAVIS is Lead Specialist and Sector Manager for Social Development in the Environmentally and Socially Sustainable Development Department of the Latin America and Caribbean Region of the World Bank. Prior to joining the LAC Region, he was a Principal Sociologist within the central Social Development Department of the World Bank and was a founding member of the unit established to strengthen the social dimensions of development projects financed by the Bank. Davis was co-founder and an original member of the first environmental unit in the Latin America and Caribbean Region and worked as a regional specialist on indigenous peoples and resettlement. At present, he is Coordinator of the Cultural Diversity and Indigenous Peoples Thematic Group in the Bank. Mr. Davis received his PhD. in Social Anthropology from Harvard University.

ADOLFO FIGUEROA has been a Professor of Economics at the Catholic University of Peru in Lima since 1970. In addition, Mr. Figueroa has held Visiting Professor positions at the University of Texas at Austin, the Facultad Latinoamericana de Ciencias Sociales (FLACSO) in Quito, Notre Dame University, and Oxford University. He has held consultant positions with the International Labor Organization (ILO), the Ford Foundation, the Inter American Foundation, the Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO), the United Nations Development Program (UNDP), and the Inter American Development Bank (IDB). Mr. Figueroa has conducted research in Peru, Mexico, Brasil and Paraguay and has published several books on the themes of development, economic theory, income distribution, agricultural economics, agrarian structure, social exclusion and inequality. He holds a PhD. in Economics from Vanderbilt University.

ESTANISLAO GACITÚA-MARIO works in the Environmentally and Socially Sustainable Development Department of the Latin America and Caribbean Region of the World Bank. He has professional experience in the areas of poverty alleviation, community development, involuntary resettlement, indigenous peoples and social assessment. Throughout his time in the bank he has participated in multiple sector studies and investment projects, including projects in poverty alleviation and social protection, infrastructure, agricultural development, natural resource management, biodiversity conservation, community development and indigenous peoples development across the region. Prior to joining the Bank in 1994, he was Research Coordinator in the Academic Center (GIA) in the Universidad Academia de Humanismo Cristiano en Santiago de Chile, and taught post-graduate courses on development theory, political sciences, and project design and monitoring. Mr Gacitúa has an interdisciplinary background with a degree in veterinarian medicine, a Master's degree in rural sociology and a PhD. in International Development from the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

JAIME ORDOÑEZ is an Advisor for Project Development Strategy and the Area for International Cooperation for the Inter-American Court on Human Rights and is Director of the Departamento de Teoría del Estado in the University of Costa Rica School of Law. He has held Visiting Professor positions with the Tulane University School of Law, the Center for Latin American Studies at the University of Maryland, the Casa America in Madrid and the Universidad de la Plata in Argentina. He was also Program Director for Administration of Justice and Ombudsman Programs for the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights and has participated in the International Advisory Commissions for the drafting of the Ombudsman Law in numerous countries throughout Latin America. His publications include themes of economic rights and development, human rights of indigenous peoples and women and globalization. Mr. Ordoñez received his PhD. in Law from the Universidad Complutense de Madrid.

GUILLERMO E. PERRY has served as Chief Economist for the Latin America and Caribbean Region since 1996 and Director of the Poverty Reduction and Macro-economic Development Unit (PREM) of the World Bank since 1997. Mr. Perry has been responsible for dialogue with regional authorities on issues related to political economy and in collaboration with the Regional Vice President, for the Bank strategy on lending services and advisory in Latin America. Within PREM for Latin America, Mr. Perry oversees the department for structural adjustment lending, economic analysis, poverty assessments and public sector reform programs in the region. Mr. Perry undertook a PhD. in Economics from the Massachusetts Institute for Technology between 1968 and 1970. He received a Master’s in Economics from the Universidad de los Andes in Bogotá, Colombia in 1968.

NELSON DO VALLE SILVA is a Researcher for the Department of Research and Development in the Laboratorio Nacional de Computación Científica/Consejo Nacional para el Desarrollo Científico y Tecnológico in Brazil. At present, he is a Professor in the Instituto Universitario de Investigaciones in Rio de Janeiro (IUPERJ). Mr. Silva was a Visiting Fulbright Professor and Fellow of Resident Research Investigaciones in the Center for Latin American Studies at the University of Florida. In addition, he has served as a Professor of Training in Social Research in the IUPERJ and the Instituto de Filosofía y Ciencias Sociales in the Universidad Federal en Rio de Janeiro. Mr. Silva was the Director of the Department of Population Studies in the Instituto Brasileño de Geografía y Estadísticas. He has published various articles on race, discrimination, inequality and poverty in Brazil. Mr. Silva received his PhD. in Sociology from the University of Michigan.

CARLOS SOJO has been a Researcher and Professor in the Facultad Latinoamericana de Ciencias Sociales (FLACSO) in Costa Rica since 1989 where at present he serves as Director. In addition, Mr. Sojo has served as a professor for Graduate Studies in Sociology and Political Science in the Universidad de Costa Rica and of International Relations and Social Sciences in the Universidad Nacional. He is a professor of Central American themes at the Instituto de Servicio del Exterior "Manuel María de Peralta" in the Ministry of Foreign Relations of Costa Rica. Mr. Sojo has worked as a consultant for the European Commission, the Danish Cooperation and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) on socio-political themes in Central America. His various publication include themes of foreign politics and international relations, governance, poverty, social exclusion and the socio-political effects of economic reforms. His most recent book is Democracias con Fracturas: Reforma Económica, Gobernabilidad y Transición en Centroamérica. Mr. Sojo received his PhD. in Social Sciences from the University of Utrecht.
CAROLINA TOHÁ is an independent consultant on public and social policy and public management in Chile. She is an Advisor for the Improvement of the Quality of higher Education Program on the Ministry of Education (MECESUP). She was a Professor in Postgraduate Studies in the Management and Public Policy Department in the Engineering School of the University of Chile and the Department of Sociology in the Catholic University of Chile. Carolina Tohá has worked as a researcher in the Fernando Santi Institute in Milán, Italy, and with the Ministry of Finance and General Secretary of the Chilean government. She has worked as a consultant for Regional Meeting of the International Ebert Foundation in Mexico City and with the Fundación Auyero in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Her publications include themes of labor relations, modernization, public policy and public management. Carolina Tohá received her PhD. in Political Science from the Università degli Studi in Milán.

MICHEL-ROLPH TROUILLOT is a Professor of Anthropology at the University of Chicago. He has held faculty positions in the departments of Anthropology at the Johns Hopkins University, Duke University and Brooklyn College. Mr. Trouillot has received fellowships from the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford, the John Simon Guggenheim Foundation, The Carter G. Woodson Center for Afro-American Studies at the University of Virginia, the Inter American Foundation, the Social Science Research Council, and the Johns Hopkins University. He has served on the Editorial Boards of numerous journals and is widely published on the topic of race and color in the Caribbean, particularly in Haiti. Mr. Trouillot holds a PhD. in Anthropology from the Johns Hopkins University.